

Adding -ed

Alien Topic

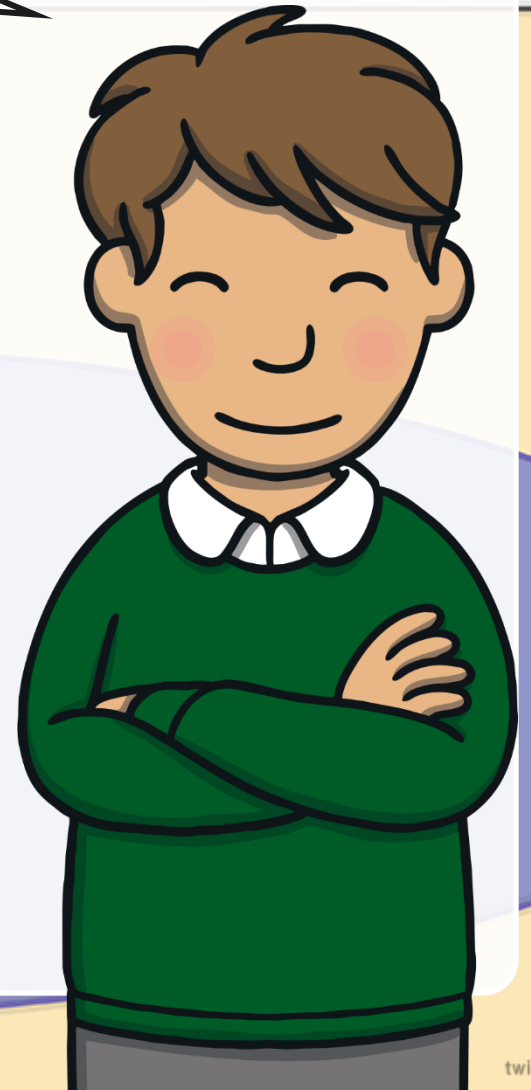

Today, we are learning to read words that contain -ed.

Let's practise reading some of this weeks focus words that contain -ed.

jumped looked gasped yelled

Mrs Tan explained that the children would need to be able to read the alien sentence to help them get started with their topic on aliens.

"I think she is joking," whispered Sam to Gabi.

"Yeah, like an April Fools joke!" replied Gabi.

“Who would like to have a try?” asked Mrs Tan.
Lots of hands shot up in the air. “Me!” shouted Kit enthusiastically.
“Okay, Kit. You can have a turn in a minute,” replied Mrs Tan.

After several attempts from different children, Kit had a go. “s-n-e-i-l-a e-v-o-l o-t t-a-e e-c-a-p-s s-k-c-or!” said Kit slowly, sounding out the unfamiliar words. Everyone laughed. Kit blushed with embarrassment.

Real

Nonsense

stimmered pulled relped stayed rained

planned cleaned

nained

Show

Mrs Tan jumped out of her seat. “Wow! Well done, Kit! That was super sound-talking!” said Mrs Tan. Mrs Tan was smilinging at Kit. Now Kit felt less embarrassed because he knew Mrs Tan was pleased with him.

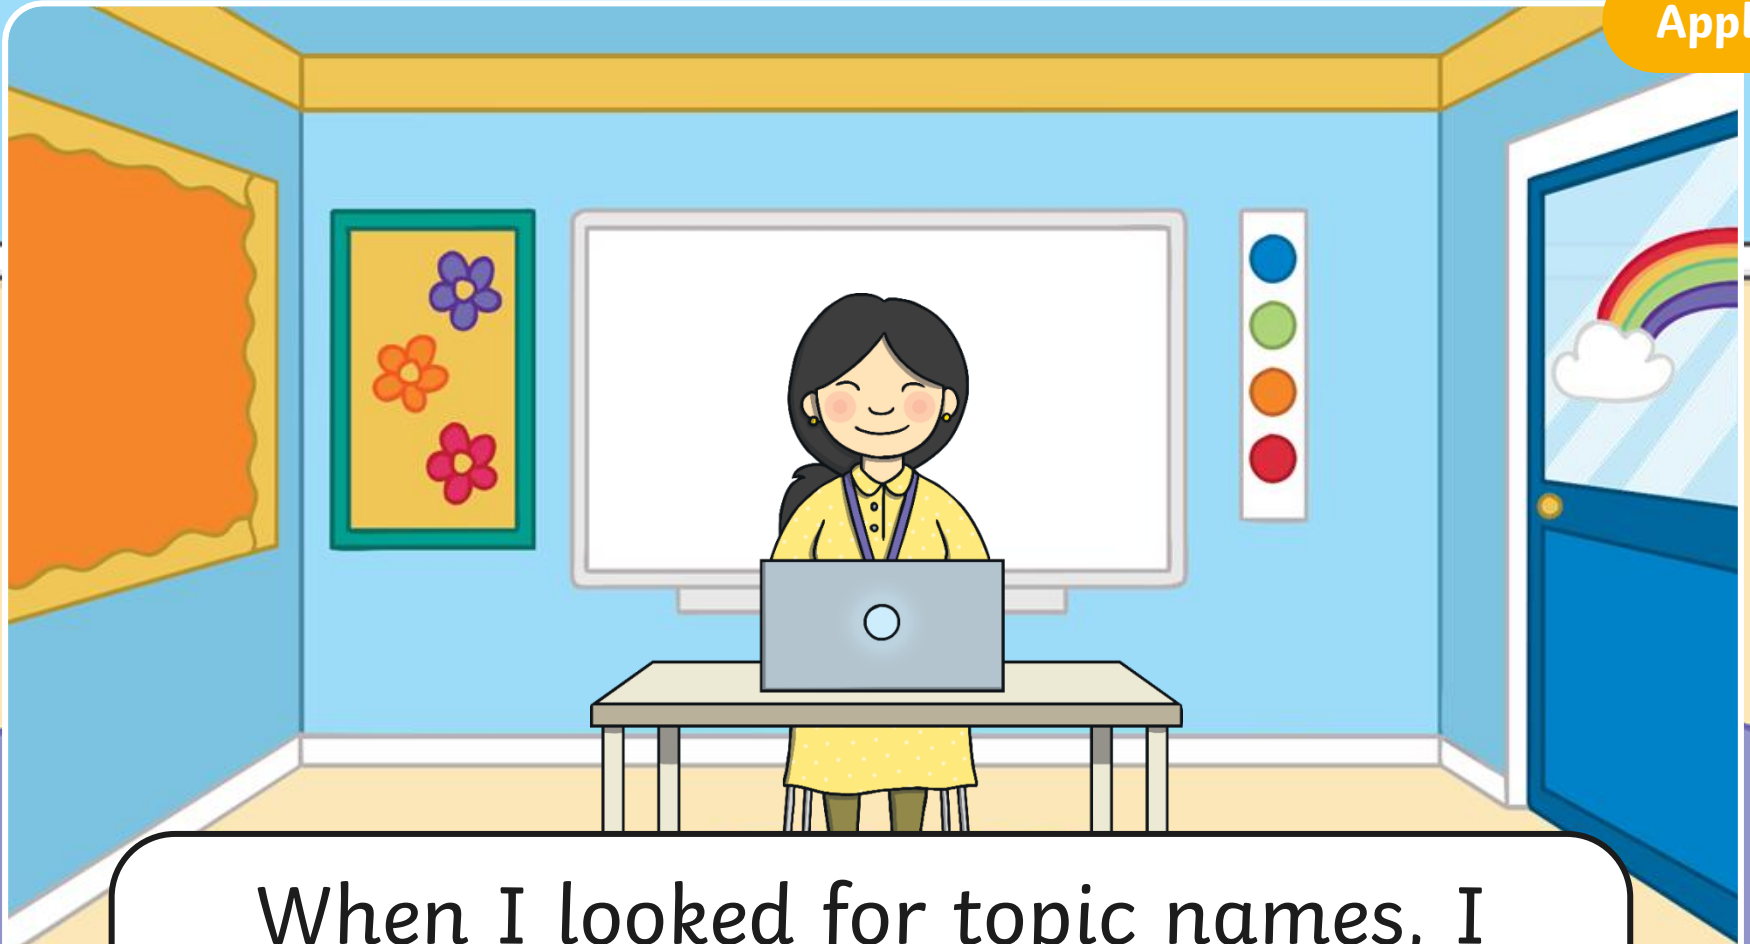

“Mrs Tan, what does that mean in alien language?” asked Mr Adams.
“Well, Mr Adams, if you read each word backwards, you will discover!” replied Mrs Tan.
The children all looked carefully at the board.

Alien Sentence

Mrs Tan reads the words backwards. What does the sentence say? What does she tell the class?

Read the sentence, then click 'Show' to reveal the answer!

When I looked for topic names, I found out that aligns love to eat space rocks!

Sound Buttons On/Off

Show

“Awesome!” shouted Kit.

“Aliens love to eat space rocks!” said Sam.

“Yes, that’s what our April topic is about. We are going to get creative and do some space rock art,” said Mrs Tan.

“This is the best school day ever! Alien language and now alien art,” said Kit to Jake. Jake nodded in agreement.

“Unfortunately, the other classes have borrowed the aprons. Please take off your jumpers and cardigans and roll up your sleeves. We do not want anyone getting too dirty,” said Mrs Tan. Little did Mrs Tan know that one of the children would end up getting very dirty!”

Today, we have learnt...

Adding -ed

