Weekend Away

twinkl

Today, we are learning to read words that contain au saying /or/.

Sometimes, a and u work as partners to make the /or/ sound.
Let's say these examples:

launch

August

astronaut

This week, we will look at the
'au' and 'aw' graphemes which both make the /or/ sound.

It was Friday night and the whole family were on their way to a special weekend away. “What a week!” sighed Mum, “I am ready for a weekend away!”

Kit and Sam were so excited to visit the space museum. Dad was looking forward to the hotel. "It has a swimming pool!" he said cheerily.

Mum and Dad checked in at the desk and everybody settled into their room. Kit and Sam bounced onto their beds full of excitement and Dad laid Ben's bed down in the corner. "Time to get into your peejays you two," said Mum.

“I can’t wait for our space adventure tomorrow!” whispered Kit.
“Me too, I want to see everything!” replied Sam, closing her eyes.
“Sleep well. Love you,” whispered Mum and Dad.

Everybody slept well in their hotel beds. “This museum should be really good fun,” said Mum. “Jenny from work visited here in August and her children raved about it!”

Hotel

“I cannot wait! I would love to see some rockets!” said Sam.
“Well, I am sure there will be some rockets and also lots more!”
replied Mum. “We just need to drop off Ben at the dog play zone first. He will be having an adventure today, too!”

“Let’s blast off then!” laughed Dad as they headed off walking towards the museum.

“We have plenty to do and see!” added Mum, holding a shiny leaflet.

Today, we have learnt...
